Introduction about PDF Accessibility

When people talk about “accessible” PDF files, they usually are referring to “tagged” PDF files, even though there is more to an accessible PDF than tags. PDF tags provide a hidden structured, textual representation of the PDF content that is presented to screen readers.

PDF includes several features in support of accessibility of documents to users with disabilities. The core of this support lies in the ability to determine the logical order of content in a PDF document, independently of the content’s appearance or layout, through logical structure and Tagged PDF.

Applications can extract the content of a document for presentation to users with disabilities by traversing the structure hierarchy and presenting the contents of each node. For this reason, producers of PDF files must ensure that all information in a document is reachable by means of the structure hierarchy. Users with disabilities can perform the equivalent of visual scans of content using their assistive technology: they can scan heading levels using and jump to specific pages but only if the document has been created in an accessible manner.

We can fix anything from individual documents to entire PDF back catalogues, including annual reports, brochures, fact sheets, newsletters, books, etc.,

Fixing PDFs to make them fully accessible can be relatively straightforward. However, in the case of more complex documents, quite a high level of expertise may be required. Organisations may not create PDFs often enough to maintain sufficient expertise in-house to handle such complex documents. In such cases

Imagine going to an employment website and downloading the position description as a Word or PDF document, only to find that you cannot access the document using your screen reader because the content is inaccessible. Creating documents that can be accessed and read by people of all abilities is just as important as creating accessible web content.

How Can we help ?

If you are unsure whether the PDFs on your site are suitable for people with disabilities or not, we can provide an audit report of any document(s), and offer detailed advice on any required corrections.

Document accessibility evaluation and remediation can be performed at any point during your project, including early planning, design, creation or testing. We understand that development schedules are often predetermined so we collaborate with you to realistically plan the project. Based on this information, we help you develop an accessibility strategy that works to meet your goals. We can fix anything from individual documents to entire PDF back catalogues, including annual reports, brochures, fact sheets, newsletters, books, exam papers and other PDF forms. We follow the Section 508 standards and WCAG 2.0 accessibility guidelines as they apply to documents.
